Better Data Better Decisions for Nature-Positive Production

Faced with a matter of years to protect, sustainably manage, and restore our landscapes that support food systems, we urgently need to make the right decisions supported by transparent, accessible, accurate, and credible data. Most importantly, better data can drive better decisions for nature-positive production when it is relevant and aligned to the needs of critical stakeholders (local, national, global) protecting, managing, restoring, and investing in landscapes. This coalition will align data, stakeholders, and evidence as a catalyst for sustainable landscapes and food systems transformation.

Food is Never Waste

The world is not yet on track to achieve SDG 12.3. An acceleration of action by countries and across the value chain is needed. Reducing food loss and waste (FLW) has a role to play in a world where approximately 1/3 of food is lost or wasted between the farm and fork each year. It results in more than $1 trillion/year in economic losses, depressing farmer incomes and pinching family budgets.
